

—Knapp's creek got full again Monday.

—Mr. Geo. W. Whiting, of Academy, called to see us today.

—Mr. H. A. Yeager, of Marlinton, was in town Tuesday.

—J. Henry Clark, Esq., Deputy Sheriff of Monroe county, died on the 10th inst.

—C. O. Arbogast, Esq., of Green Bank, was in town a couple of days this week.

—Attorney L. M. McClinton has returned from a business trip to Grafton.

—M. J. McNeel is still Agt for the celebrated Champion Binders, Reapers and Mower. Repairs on hand. 39 St.

—In the case of Uriah Hevener and others vs. Pocahontas County Court in regard to the County seat removal, the injunction prayed for in the bill was refused.

—Looking too closely at a dollar doesn't make it any bigger, but it very often makes the soul a good deal smaller.

—Ye ed. and wife, had the pleasure of visiting a couple of days lately near Academy. The Levels is the garden spot of our county, and no prettier country can be found in the State.

—Rev. C. M. Sarver, preached his first sermon for this circuit at this place last Sunday morning. Though we did not have the pleasure to hear him we learn that he preached a very interesting sermon.

—We learn that the C. & O. engineers have finished their survey from Marlinton to Covington, and will now make a survey from the White Sulphur Springs to Marlinton, and as soon as this is finished and the most practical route decided upon by the Company the road will be let to contract.

—We have received a copy of the boom issue of the Fairmount Int. It is an 8 column 14 page edition, and contains about 30 columns of advertising. It gives a complete history of the town, autobiographies of the leading business men, prospects of the future and a full description of the work of development there.

—The Morgantown Post announces that a traffic agreement has been made between the West Virginia Central and the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, by the terms of which latter agrees to extend its line from Hagerstown to connect with the Pennsylvania line at Connellsville. The West Virginia Central will build south from Elkins, to connect with the Chesapeake and Ohio. The arrangement gives the two roads control of the West Virginia coal, coke and lumber regions, shutting out all rivals on both sides.—Elkins News.

—The turnpike between this place and Marlinton, and in fact all of our public roads are a disgrace to our county. There are rocks in the road between the lower end of the M. D. McLaughlin place and Marlinton that will weigh from 25 to 100 lbs, and the new road above Mr. M. A. Friel's has slipped away so that it is almost impassable by a loaded wagon. These roads ought to be looked after and fixed up at once, or they will soon be in such a fix that nobody can either get in or out of the county.

Murderer Harrison to Hang.

Huntington, W. Va., April 14.—Allen Harrison who last Saturday week shot and killed Bettie Adams because she would not marry him, has been on trial since Friday. The case was completed and given to the jury which brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree, and he was sentenced to be hung July 1st.

—"Cap" Hatfield, the notorious outlaw is reported to have been killed a few days ago in a row over a game of poker in his house among outlaws, who had solemnly vowed perpetual friendship. In the mountains of Logan county, West Virginia, near the secluded retreat of the notorious "Bad Anse" Hatfield, was the house of "Cap" Hatfield, whose record for murders in the Hatfield McCoy feud stands second only to that of his brother "Anse." "Cap" Hatfield, was regarded as the worst member of the Hatfield gang, though he had not, perhaps, killed as many people as his brother, "Bad Anse." When the authorities announced the rewards for the capture of this family of criminals, "Cap" headed the list at $1,250. "Bad Anse" and "Jesse" Hatfield were each valued at $700, which would show that "Cap" was looked upon as about equal to two of the most famous criminals West Virginia has ever produced. "Cap" Hatfield was charged with a number of cold blooded murders.

MARLINTON NEWS.

The news of this town is rather scarce.

Mr. Sam Holt has moved into his new store house, and has a large stock of goods.

Messrs. Fay and Clark are painting the printing office quite a fastidiously color which draws the attention of all passers by.

Mr. James Price has improved very much, and Mrs. Henry Yeager is still confined to her room.

Dr. Cunningham was called home to see his father, who is very ill.

The "Marlinton Argus" a new paper published (written) here by some unknown editor or editors and put up in a very conspicuous place has brought forth considerable comment. The writers of such degraded, stuff should receive the condemnation of all respectable people.

Mr. Wilson, who owns the livery stable has moved into his new office and is now ready to accommodate the public with fine riding and driving horses, also new buggies and carts.

If the candidates keep on increasing, some man will get a profitable job-making canoe next fall for the defeated candidates to sail up salt river in.

If we do not have a few weddings in the near future it will not be the young men's fault.

Old Poca. has lost two of its best citizens, A. M. and M. D. McLaughlin. They have moved to Greenbrier Co., where they have bought fine farms. Who will fill their places.

Success to THE TIMES.
Hurrah for Cleveland.

GREEN BANK BREVITIES.

Mr. J. H. Patterson is home this week on a visit.

The X road Sunday School was organized on last Sunday, with a good attendance.

Mr. H. M. Siple and wife, will move to William's River this week on Col. McGraw's land where they will make their future home.

Capt. Lakin, of Dunmore with a crew of men started down Greenbrier river with a raft of cherry lumber for Sam Cooper last Tuesday.

There will be several cases before Justice Siple at this place on the 23rd inst.

Drs. J. P. Mooman and C. L. Austin were called to J. W. Rileys today to see J. L. Arbogast, who is very sick.

The health of this community is good at present as Old Grippe has taken his leave from us, but has left a few rheumatic pains to trouble us in his absence.

Messrs. C. A. Lightner and W. A. Gladwell are making a fine road as far as they have gone.

Our candidates are around thick, shaking hands for votes. Boys you will have to shake fast or some of you might get left on the home stretch.

Hurrah for Grover Cleveland and the POCAHONTAS TIMES. Everybody ought to take THE TIMES, and see what a good paper it is. It is chuck full of County and State news. There is no better county paper in the State than THE TIMES is now. Leave your name and $1.50 with the postmaster at this place and subscribe for a year.

Messrs. Blain and A. L. Nottingham and Wm. L. Moore, started on the 11 inst. for Missoula, Montana. We wish them a safe journey.

Brown Yeager, of Traveler's Rest is moving to the Mitchell McLaughlin farm, near Huntersville. Success to your valuable paper. C. H.

Letter from Clover Lick

CLOVER LICK, Apr. 16, 1892.—ED. TIMES: I notice in your last issue you are in favor of ex-Gov. E. W. Wilson for Congress. I think, so far as I am informed the sentiment of the people of the County is largely in favor of Hon. John D. Alderson. All that you say of the Ex-Gov can be as truly said of Alderson—besides I think it has been the custom to nominate the same candidate three times. Alderson's 1st term was almost a blank by the costly but able contest he made. He carried the district where it was lost to Cleveland and Fleming on the poll books and in 1890 his vote in the counties of the 3rd district was more than 800 over that of Lucas for supreme judge, so that it cannot be claimed that he is a weak candidate. Then why change? We wish to nominate a true Democrat, in sympathy with the nomination of Cleveland that can be elected. Ex-Gov. Wilson's antagonism to certain interests in the State and district though proper enough, have been made so pronounced that they will perhaps be arrayed against him.

A Strange Case.

Some weeks ago Sam'l Pollock, of Ronceverte, lost his voice. It was supposed at the time that he had suffered a stroke of paralysis, but no other symptoms were visible and his general health seemed unaffected. A short time since he complained of a cutting sensation in his throat and an obstruction of his wind-pipe. In the effort to clear his throat he coughed up a triangular piece of window glass, about the size of a three-cent piece. This glass was coated with a substance resembling lime, with the exception of one of the angles, which was clean and as sharp as a razor. Mr. Pollock immediately recovered the use of his voice and is apparently as well as ever. How the glass got into his body is a mystery to him.—Ronceverte News.

A Postal Improvement.

Scattered throughout the 2,807 counties of the United States there are nearly 65,000 postoffices. Of these about 10,000 are money order offices, leaving nearly 55,000 that have no other way of transmitting money or valuable matter than by registered mail. These are mostly, if not entirely, rural offices, remote from bank. Last year the number of registered pieces of mail was 11,148,960, of which there were lost or destroyed 918 pieces. While the revenue from the registry business amounted to $1,238,906, not a cent of indemnity was paid to make good these losses.

To remedy this Mr. Kribbs, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill a few days ago to indemnify the senders of registered domestic mail to an amount not exceeding $15 for money and $8 for merchandise. The increased registry business with this security would no doubt pay all losses.

TO PUMP COAL TO TOWN.

Powder it, Mix with Water, Send Through Pipe and Then Dry It.

Wallace C. Andrews, president of the New York Steam Company, has a plan to bring coal direct to New York from the Pennsylvania coal fields, suspended in water, through an immense pipe line 450 miles long. The coal is to be ground to atoms, mixed with water and pumped into pipes by tremendously powerful engines. The coal-carrying stream will travel through the pipes at an average rate of five miles an hour. At this end the fluid will run into immense pans, probably on the Jersey meadows. After the coal has settled to bottom the water will be drawn off. The coal will then be collected, and even in its atomized state can be most advantageously used for many purposes, such as making steel. For household use it will be compressed into what Mr. Andrews calls "briquettes."

A model of the proposed pipe line on a small scale has been in operation in this city for some time. It is connected with the steam company's station at Madison avenue and Fifty-eighth street. The model pipe line extends about two blocks, starting from the station and running back to it again. It is a complete pipe line with a Worthington pump and wrought iron pipes. When a World porter called on Mr. Andrews yesterday he had two glass jars filled with Connellsville coal and water on his desk. In one the coal had precipitated, leaving the water clean and white. When he shook the other jar the mixture assumed an inky appearance. It had great density, but so full were the particles that they did not make any sound when they struck the glass sides of the jar.

"I have been at work on this thing for some seven or eight years," said Mr. Andrews, "and have secured my patents in twelve of the principal countries of the world. I have pulverized anthracite coal and pumped it, half coal and half water, at a speed of five miles per hour, for a distance of 3,000 miles. We are now working on the famous Connellsville coking coal, mined near Pittsburg, and it works equally well. We shall continue the pumping of that for the same distance. We shall then charge the pipe line with the Pittsburg seam of high grade gas coal and do the same thing.

"The workings of this pipe line have been inspected by Andrew Carnegie, Mr. Frick, of Pittsburg, the greatest coke producer in the world; Jay C. Morse, president of the Illinois Steel Company, whose works and Mr. Carnegie's are the largest consumers of coal in the world, and Mr. Worthington, the great pump builder. None of them have as yet been able to give any reason why the scheme should not be a practical success.

"The coal is pulverized at the mines and is then purified by washing, and the sulphur, iron pyrites, slate, etc., removed, and then it is transported to market. The impurities named are more or less in all coals, and are not wholly valueless, but produce a large percentage of ash and clinker, and are an injury and expense at the point of consumption. I propose to send to market nothing but pure coal, and the small expense of so pulverizing and washing it will be more than paid for by the improved quality of the coal when it reaches its destination. The expense of transportation by pipe line, moreover, will be very small compared with that by rail."
